

LEGACY DATA ARCHIVE SOLUTION

Is your legacy data costing you too much?

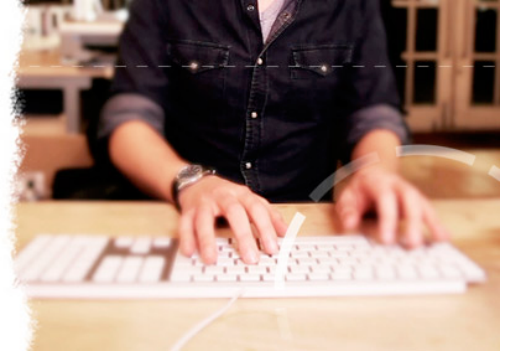

Companies routinely change applications because their business needs are not static and always changing. Key data is often not migrated into the newer application and is still available in the older application. Companies must still pay software maintenance to keep the old application operational. Moreover, companies still incur internal labor costs and data center costs for maintaining the application. Why spend precious dollars maintaining an infrequently used application? Homeland has a better solution!

Homeland's Legacy Data Archive Solution:

Homeland provides companies with a customized browser based application for easy viewing of extracted legacy data. The extracted legacy data typically consists of both report images and discrete data. The chosen method for extracting the legacy data is unique to each application; however, Homeland has never encountered an application that could not be put into the Legacy Data Archive Solution.
